

Join the Steel Fabricators of New England.

SFNE non-fabricator membership is available to firms that do not fabricate structural steel, but do engage in the structural steel industry.

SFNE is the only regional organization that represents the structural and miscellaneous steel industry!

Networking

Structural and miscellaneous steel fabricators recognize SFNE non-fabricator members as strong supporters of the industry. SFNE meetings and seminars bring together the industry's leaders to exchange information on topics of mutual concern. In addition, social events such as the annual golf tournament provide opportunities to meet with colleagues in an informal setting to expand your circle of valuable business contacts.

There is Power in Numbers

The laws and regulations that affect SFNE structural and miscellaneous steel fabricators can also impact your business. As such membership in SFNE is open to firms that do not fabricate structural steel, but do engage in the structural steel industry. As the membership of SFNE grows so does its ability to gain support for legislative issues affecting the industry. SFNE members must be organized in a grass-roots effort in order to reach out to local state legislators.

Education

SFNE conducts seminars and provides speakers that are not only of interest to steel fabricators but could help you improve your profitability. Some of the topics include: avoiding contract traps, managing your health and workman's comp insurance, getting paid for change orders, upcoming changes in engineering codes, steel market and regional construction outlooks and how to help an owner convert a project from concrete to steel!

Cost

The annual dues are only $350.00, and for new members the fee is only $300.00.
